Heavy Hickey.
C. G. Bates of the United States forest service has found in western Arkansas a species of hickory, locally known as "bull" or "alligator" hickory, which exhibits remarkable resistance to the effects of drought as well as to forest fires. Its small, thick-skinned leaves are assigned as a principal cause of its drought defying powers. Like other hickories, it also sends down into the soil a long, strong taproot. Mr. Bates suggests that this tree would be useful for planting in prairie states and in dry situations in other localities. Where fires frequently occur the alligator hickory is the sole survivor.—Youth's Companion.

Passing of Old Brussels.
It is disappearing, our old Brussels. They are passing away, the buildings which bear witness to an artistic past, the good houses which spoke in intimate whispers to the heart of the sons of the good city, so picturesque and particular. Intrusive cosmopolitanism dictates the law to the stupid pick-axes, and the officials of the public demolition department assist unmoved in the work of devastation.—Brussels Petit Bleu.

CHURCH FOR LABOR.

Catholic Theology Upholds Unionism, Says Rev. Dr. Ryan.

The Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, professor of ethics and economics in the Roman Catholic seminary of St. Paul, Minn., delivered an address recently before the Brooklyn Central Labor union at the Labor lyceum, Brooklyn, N. Y., upon "Church and Labor." Professor Ryan is the author of "A Living Wage" and was invited to speak by the union. His address was well received, and at its close he was accorded a standing vote of thanks. One of the sentiments which most pleased his hearers was:

"Catholic theology condemns none of the characteristic methods of unionism when used with reason and moderation. This statement applies to the strike, the union shop, the boycott and in extreme cases even to the 'secondary boycott.'"

In the course of his address Professor Ryan said: "Organization, conciliation and arbitration would, in conjunction with a universal living wage, bring about as near an approach to complete wage justice as is practically attainable in a world of human beings. With reference to organization I may say in passing that Catholic theology condemns none of the characteristic methods of unionism when used with reason and moderation."

"The principle that capital is entitled to merely fair interest would, if enforced, put an end to the exactions of monopoly, to stock watering and the various other devices of fraudulent finance and to the accumulation of predatory fortunes. Surely the church, whose chief province is the world of the spirit, is not neglectful of her social duties when she lays down such beneficent and far-reaching principles of social justice as these."

The Socialists do, indeed, condemn her for failing to adopt their particular social scheme, but until they have demonstrated that socialism is workable the church will very properly confine her attention to the evils and abuses of the present order and will discountenance all attempts to abolish that order by the method of revolution."

OHIO'S NEW LABEL LAW.

Penalties Provided For Unauthorized Use of Union Emblems.

The amended label law passed at the last session of the general assembly of Ohio is considered a model of its kind. The bill reads as follows:

Section 1. That sections 4261-4264 and 4265-4266 of the revised statutes be amended so as to read as follows:
Sec. 4261-4264. Any person or persons, partnership or corporation who shall use or display the genuine label, trademark, term, design, device or form of advertisement of any such association or union in any manner, not being authorized so to do by such association or union, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred dollars ($200). In all such cases where such association or union is not incorporated under this act may be commenced and prosecuted by an officer or member of such association or union or by a person authorized by such association or union for the use of such association or union.

Sec. 4265-4266. Any person or persons, partnership or corporation who shall in any way use the genuine label, trademark, design, device or form of advertisement or the name or seal of any such association or union or officer thereof in and about the sale of goods or otherwise, not being authorized so to use the same, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred dollars ($200).

COSTLY CLEANLINESS.

Water in Goldfield Sold For a Cent and a Half a Gallon.

We who can bathe and splash about in cool, fresh water as we will can hardly appreciate the inconveniences of a condition in which each drop of water is carefully measured out. In Goldfield the two problems of dust and water give most trouble. There is never a time that there is not plenty of the former and little of the latter. Without warning of any sort great whirlwinds come down the canyons and through the streets, carrying blinding clouds of dust. A blow of some sort is a daily occurrence. The fine white dust sifts into the houses and covers everything. It is a case of dusting a dozen times a day and never really having things quite clean.

The water supply of Goldfield comes from wells in camp and at Lida, fifty miles to the southwest. Whether bought from the man who goes around with a cart or from the water company, every gallon costs on an average at least a cent and a half. At best it is an expensive luxury. Every precious drop has to be put to as many uses as possible. The bathing establishments offer baths at $1 each, with the bath joke thrown in. The joke runs like this: In the early days of the camp, when baths cost $2, after the man who had elected this luxury had finished, as a matter of economy the water had to be put to some use, so it was offered to a second bath at a reduced price, $1, then again to a third for 50 cents and to a fourth for "two bits." Following this came a few feats of dishwashing. Times have changed, but water is still the problem of the desert. Ice being too expensive a luxury for general use, everybody resorts to African water bags. These are filled and hung in shady places where the breeze can strike them. By puncturing them with a needle sufficient water oozes out to wet the outside, and the damp cloth and air keep the contents cool. Hanging on the shady side of every house, shack and tent, strapped to the saddle of every prospector, in the hand or fastened to the neck of every Indian, is a water bag. The weather, in other places a plank on which to slide gracefully into conversation, here is a fruitful and interesting topic for unending discussion. In its variety it is unending. One summer is wet—wet for the desert—and the next one dry. Usually there is a little rain, and when it does come the downpour lasts only five or ten minutes. Rarely does it lay the dust.—New Idea Magazine.

Rehearsed His Funeral.

Inviting the brothers in his lodge to gather around him, Joseph Sandlin, a charter member of the Red Men at Advance, this county, climbed into a coffin which he had made to his order, stretched himself out as he will lie when he is dead, crossed his hands over his breast and bade them pass around and view him. Mr. Sandlin is a veteran of the civil war and is eccentric. He is sixty-eight years old. Mr. Sandlin made a coffin of the best yellow poplar, superior in workmanship and quality, and bought a lot in a cemetery, and he has placed a monument over the spot where he desires to be buried. He left the coffin in the care of the lodge, inside of which he placed written instructions as to funeral arrangements.—Lebanon (Ind.) Cor. Indianapolis News.

The Pup's Picnic.

A Boston bulldog owned by George H. Clapp was so determined to capture a woodchuck which he had chased into its den that he followed after and stayed in the hole all night. When the dog had got his jaws about the enemy he found that he could not get out owing to the small size of the animal's hole. Rather than lose his prey the dog retained his hold on the woodchuck overnight and was helped out by his master in the morning. The dog was nearly exhausted and revived after feeding and drinking in a careless manner. He consumed about two quarts of unguaranteed ice cream, which had been set aside for a party. After this the dog seemed still somewhat dazed and epped the climax by falling into a bucket of lemonade.—Worcester Telegram.

Society Versus Room

For a very small consideration additional, I am prepared to exchange the society of the following articles for the room they occupy. It would cost a lot of money to build a storehouse to keep these goods over to next season, and I will divide the cost of such a building among my customers by cutting prices to the sale.

5 Plovers, regular price $11.00 and 12.00, sale price.....$5.00 and 5.50
2 One-horse Lumber Wagons, regular price $40.00, sale price.....$24.00
1 Concord Buggy, regular price $35.00, sale price.....$24.00
4 Disc Harrows, regular price $25.00 each, sale price.....$15.00
1 Gasoline Engine, slightly used, regular price $150.00, sale price.....$90.00
1 new 4-H. P. Engine, regular price $200.00, sale price.....$100.00
2 $5.00 Broilers, second hand, regular price $25.00, sale price each.....2.00
3 Sixty-Egg Prairie State Incubator, regular price $3.00, sale price.....6.00
1 One Hundred Egg Prairie State Incubator, regular price $15.00, sale price.....10.00
1 One Hundred Fifty Egg Prairie State Incubator, regular price $22.50, sale price.....17.50
1 Mann Power Bone Cutter, regular price $30.00, sale price.....20.00

I have several Mowing-machines, Rakes and Tedders that can be bought so cheap it would pay you to get them now for next season. A lot of Farm Machinery not named above at same price ratio.

Come and see for yourself.

* This Bone Cutter and Engine would be a money-maker for someone this winter.
